HE WILL SEND A PRINCE TO VISIT QUEEN VICTORIA.

Queen Jubilee Gossip—Rooms to Watch Blessed Ladies Cannot Participate—The Prince of Wales Inspired to a Question—Saturday's "Evening News"—Edward Lear' Letter—Preparing to Entertain Royalties in London—Personal Gossip.

LONDON, May 10.—[New York World Cable.]—I understand that Prince Nasir Effendi, the Sultan's eldest son, is coming from Constantinople to represent his Majesty at the jubilee celebration next month. Prince Nasir was born in 1870, is a very intelligent youth, and understands European politics and manners. He will be accompanied by a large retinue, and in all probability the large private residence which has been fitted up for Queen's Imperial from June 20 till July 1. The Queen is to get several splendid and valuable presents from India, but the jubilary ceremonies are to be dispensed with on Sunday next week, and the gems and Princess Beatrice are to be among the communicants. I hear that there are several persons in Great Britain who take exception to the arrangement both to the Episcopal and Presbyterian churches which they attend, fifty years ago the eastern Parishes in the north would have quite given ourselves from us on the ground of permitting such levities, so to think that the half-crotty movement proves the love of questioned points in all properly conducted Presbyterian households, and I am told that several members of the congregation have promised to certainly.

I may add, parenthetically, that Lord Wimborne, who was born in 1810, is a very intelligent man, and is much liked by all who know him. He is the largest private residence which has been fitted up for Queen's Imperial from June 20 till July 1. The question who rises from abroad for the jubilee will be distributed between the Prince of Wales, the Queen, Princess Louise, Lord Lorne, Princess Beatrice, and Colonel Ponsonby. Such members of the suite who cannot be accommodated at either of these residences will be quartered either at a private hotel which has been lent to the Queen or at the Palace Hotel in Buckingham Gate, where some score of suite have been engaged for the week by the Lord Chamberlain.

WHO WINS THE DERBY?

GOOD JUDGMENT AND SPECULATION ON THE GREAT LOUISVILLE EVENT.

During the Derby in the Pools and Mutuels Backed by His Owner, but the Last Betting on the Side of the Form Horses and the Probable Chances of Chicago, Detroit, Boston, and Washington, Winners of the Ball Games—The Record of Sports.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 10.—[Special.]—The opening meeting of the Louisville Jockey Club at Churchill Downs, the finest course on the turf, is generally likely to attract a large attendance, and the opening day, Derby day, the most prominent on the list, is looked forward to by the sporting fraternity as the one on which the largest crowd will be present. Accordingly this morning the gates were thrown open to the public, and the grounds and paddock were thrown open to inspection. The weather was delightful, and the track in splendid condition, and the consequence was that before noon the grounds were filled with a large crowd, which was augmented by the arrival of the 11:30 train from the city. The grounds are beautifully situated, and the track is a perfect one. The paddock is a large one, and the stables are all that could be desired. The grandstand is a large one, and has a seating capacity of 5,000, and the betting ring is also a large one. The club has been very fortunate in securing the services of Judge Bullock, of Lexington, Ky., as starter, and Messrs. Williams and Ellis, of Louisville, as judges. The following is the list of entries and weights for the Derby, which is the principal event of the day:

CHICAGO, May 10.—The second spring meeting at Hawthorne will open to-morrow. The Chicago Jockey Club has made a number of improvements since last year, and the track is now in splendid condition. The betting ring has been enlarged, and the paddock is now one of the largest and most convenient in the country. The entries for the first day's racing are as follows:

Chicago Defeats Indianapolis by a Superior Line of Batting.

The champion pennant of the Indianapolis baseball team was lowered to-day by the Chicagos, who, by batting hard and timely, won the game. Fine and fiery pitching by Hutchinson, of Chicago, and Knell, of Indianapolis, kept down the scores. The home team started the ball rolling in the first inning, batting Knell for a single, a two-base hit, and a home run, and scoring four runs. Hutchinson was batted for a single in the second inning, and Duffee's out at second completed the retirement of the side. Hutchinson struck out in the third inning, and Duffee's out at second retired the side. Knell struck out in the fourth inning, and Hutchinson's out at second retired the side. Hutchinson struck out in the fifth inning, and Duffee's out at second retired the side. Knell struck out in the sixth inning, and Hutchinson's out at second retired the side. Hutchinson struck out in the seventh inning, and Duffee's out at second retired the side. Knell struck out in the eighth inning, and Hutchinson's out at second retired the side. The congress will remain in session for a week, and many prominent colored men from all parts of the country are in attendance.

It is reported that several large industries are now being erected in Belgium close to the French frontier. They are intended to supply the French people with bread at a cheaper rate than can be done by the bakers. The secret of this economy in food is the fact that the direct increase of duties on importation of wheat and flour was not accompanied by an equal increase in bread, and consequently the foreigner will be driven from France from orders. This fact accounts for the activity in the almost bankrupt agricultural districts. But it is not impossible that by the time these Belgian industries get well under way the enterprise will be stopped in the bud, either by an abolition of the duty on wheat and flour or the imposing of an equivalent one on the product of the mills.

HOME LIGHT ON THE REBELLION WAR.

The White Book, by Lamont Young, just in the January of the late Judge C. Lyle Hickey in the Circuit Court of the United States District but was a notable one from an historical point of view, as well as for its personal characteristics of the accused. Endowed both as a lawyer and a soldier, Judge Hickey entered the service in the spring of 1861, and, in connection with the [illegible] he accomplished in arming and equipping his famous regiment, Mr. Young contributes some valuable historical information.

Week after week passed by and neither arms nor uniforms came for the regiment, and at last, upon Col. Hickey's request, Mr. Young went to Washington to see the President and explain the foregetting of the arms and supplies necessary. He soon discovered that the delay was not occasioned by instruction. The cause was not difficult to find. From that day to this the question has been frequently asked why the President did not call for half a million men, when all the loyal States were crying more men upon the Government and appealing for permission to increase the Union army up to the strength of the Rebel forces. Mr. Young had not been long in Washington before he learned from President Lincoln himself why the call was limited to 75,000. The Government could not utilize more. In the characteristic way Lincoln said to him: "Young, if your regiment was to wait and take an honest turn, the war would be not yet given, as the clergy's 'Lambs to make their uniforms.'" Every man a true begins under such overwhelming disadvantages and discouraging prospects. At the beginning the Government had no arms, no uniforms, no money. Had Lincoln called out 500,000 men the tradesmen of the country would have made the enterprise seem impossible by the [illegible] of prices. The other nations, finding the Government in the hands of the Union party, would have refused to loan it money. The Southern armies had been organized, with their ample stores of arms, ammunition, and uniforms. The navy, consisting of [illegible] vessels, had been shipped from Northern arsenals and factories into the South and Southwest. The heaviest and [illegible] guns, the finest and most effective firearms, improved machine and rifled cannon, were sent by Floyd from the Springfield Armory and Watervliet Arsenal to the Southern arsenals. The fleets began the war with over 150,000 small arms of the most approved modern patterns, according to our historian, Mr. Greeley, in his "American Conflict," more.
